POLICE WON'T HELP.

Court Will Name Deputy Marshals to Enforce Sunday Closing.

Kansas City, Oct. 17.-Elliott H. Jones and Andrew Gallagher, police commissioners, refused to issue an order to the police instructing them to arrest, on view, persons working in theaters and at other vocations on Sunday, according to the instructions contained in Judge Wallace's charge to shal. Marshal Heslip immediately sent deputies to make the arrests. Frank Lowe, attorney for the Grand opera house, telephoned the marshal to take all the theater warrants to his office and that theater managers would be there to accept service. In his supplementary charge to the grand jury Judge Wallace said the indictments returned indicated that the members of the jury were in accord with the court in its views on Sunday labor. He drew attention to the fact that theater managers are the only alleged violators of Sunday laws to be defended by anyone and, necessarily. Judge Wallace said, the list of these violators is long. Many barbers, he said, for instance, had importuned him to punish those of their trade who dis-

"A depression in business is caused by lack of money. There is no lack of money in the country. There are piles of it, but the people will not let it circulate because of this false sentiment engendered by antagonism to those conducting big business enterprises. A dollar is a missionary; let it roll and it will do a certain amount of clearing; but if you create an antagonism the owner of the money is likely to stop it half way, and when it does not reach the other fellow who expects it he naturally becomes uneasy. "While, as I have said, the expense of "While, as I have said, the expense of the primary is not now the controlling consideration, the expense of an extra session would of course need to be con-cidered. It would not be more than half Auditor Nation's estimate of $45,000 for the necessary cost of a primary election, and certainly would not in any event exceed that sum. I think Mr. Nation's figures are not far from correct, and he does not consider what the cost will be to other parties of the state for primaries. It will certainly be as much more, or at least $75,000 all together. This will hold the special session and conduct the first primary under a wise law. While you claim the cost will not amount to much to candidates, it must be paid by them or other public spirited clitzens of the state. Besides this, the primary law the people want is one where there is official supervision at public expense. The first one will be paid for by the people any way, and the sooner it comes the better it will suit them. They will get something for their money and are ready to pay the price.

me until after several of the persons whom you addressed on the same matter had answered your letter.

"It seems to me that the question of how the next nominees of the party are to be selected is one to be settled by the state committee, without regard to the opinion of candidates for office. The control of party committees by candidates, in their own or their friends' interests is one among the exissional to be prevented by the retirement of the convention system, and the adoption of a primary law. It is the duty of the committee to ascertain what plan the people wish, and then to adopt that plan. If after its adoption, it seems to any candidate to be unjust to his interests, he can exercise the right of an American citizen and retire from the contest. For this reason, I shall not consider the question of expense at this time.

"However, you desire my opinion as to the advisability of the proposed pri-Southern Pacific railroad. The government was not inclined to take up the problem of forcing the river back into its banks, and turned the job over to us, and we paid for it all. When we came to ship material out there, the Colorado Improvement company asked for a rate on the stuff which was to be used in damming the river. We quoted them the same rate that the railroad would charge against itself for the transportation of its own material. Technically this was a violation of the law because it was a lower rate than would be given ordinarily to other people in the same business as the Colorado improvement company. Practically, however, as we paid for everything we were only making the usual rate that we make to ourselves. Now on a partisan statement of the facts son, I shall not consider the question of expense at this time.

"However, you desire my opinion as to the advisability of the proposed primary, and I give it as nearly as possible without regard to any personal interest I may have in it.

"For more than two years prior to the last state convention, I have advocated the passage of a state primary law, which should include as nearly as possible under the constitution the selection of United States senator. If I had thought the present law adequate for the purpose of nominating such officers, I would not have advocated a new law. It is admitted. I think, by almost every one that any primary that can be held under the present law will be subject to all the objections of the convention system, except perhaps that of shifting candidates for one position to that of another after the convention is in session.

rate that we make to ourselves. Now on a partisan statement of the facts that affair could be twisted into a vio-lation of the law, if no explanation was lation of the law, if no explanation was afforded. It is to avoid such misconstructions as would be possible under similar circumstances that I deplore these constant investigations, and I believe that it is the newspapers of the country which can best create a healthier condition of public opinion."

A touching illustration of the mutual confidence entertained by the warring factions was shown last night when both the Harriman and Fish proxies were placed in one of the vaults in the Illinois Central offices. Both sides promptly placed watchmen outside the vault and they remained on duty until the proxy committee called for the pa-leave no doubt as to the inefficiency of the present law.

"The fate of an efficient and up-to-date primary law in the next set lon of the legislature, and in fact, in the next decade in the state, is in the balance. And if the result of an experiment under this imperfect law is disappointing, you will not be able to convince many that the failure is due to the law and not to the system. The sentiment for a real primary will thus be seriously impaired.

"I believe the people of the state are for a primary, under a law that will enable them to really hominate their candidates and not for a primary which may prove to be a farce. The Republican party, and its committee, can afford to be fair and frank with the people on this issue. The party has it in its power to give what the people demand. Let the state committee meet and by appropriate resolution ask Governor Hoch to convene the legislature to enact a suitable primary law, and thus share with him the responsibility of such action. The governor favors a primary and has shown that he is willing to call a special session for this purpose if the people demand it.

It Disposed of More Than $1,000,000 in Property.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 17.-After the body of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was lowered into the grave at her childhood home Woodstock, Ont., there was made public in this city a will she made two years before her strange criminal career was exposed. There is a remarkable contrast between the pathetic funeral scene in the little Canadian cemetery and the picture of opulence told in the words of the will. Altogether, it is one of the most interesting documents yet found in connection with Mrs. Chadwick's opin connection with Mrs. Chadwick's operations.

The will disposes of over $1,000,000 worth of property. In it her son, daughter and husband, a retinue of servants, relatives in distant cities and friends, all share to the extent of hundreds of thousands. Charitable institutions, ten of them, come in to the extent of $20,000 to $100,000 each. The humane society was to get $50,000. Western Reserve university was bequeathed $100,000 cash and was to benefit under other generous provisions. provisions.

In every case of bequest to an institution, Mrs. Chadwick stipulated that she should receive full credit, ordering that the funds be named "Chadwick memorial funds," and that if buildings be erected they be called "Chadwick" buildings.

We do not sell adulterated linseed oil and guarantee all the oil we sell as linseed oil to be pure and of good quality. Elsenchind, Chief Chemist for the American Linseed Co. who are the largest manufacturers in seed Co., who are the largest manufacturers in the United States of Linseed Oil and Flax Seed Products. In concluding his report Mr. Elsen-

"The oil is heavily adulterated with kerosene to the amount of 40 per cent, and with rosin to the amount of 5 per cent. The rosin was evidently added in an awkward attempt to cover up the deficiencies in the analytical figures caused by the presence of so much keresene. It is needless to say anything further about the oil, except that it is one of the worst samples of so-called linseed oil that has ever come under the observation of the writer."

A dealer would hardly sell oil as bad as the above unless he knew either very little about the paint business or about the quality of the goods he was selling.
